

get the look

knits for right now

BY CATHERINE DUNWOODY

TREND WATCH When the weather turns chillier, especially at night, most of us have a hard time reaching for a tweedy fall coat quite yet. This is where all the cozy, new autumn sweaters come in — perfect pieces for right now. Watch for chunky new cardigans, jackets and wrap sweaters, plus knit ponchos and shrugs are making a comeback, too.

HOW TO WEAR IT Knits look new over so many pieces in your existing wardrobe already. Throw an extra-long shrug scarf, like the one pictured at right, over a dress, leggings or top — it's a great travel piece for over-air-conditioned airplanes, too. Or, cuddle up in the striped, belted cardigan shown below with jeans and a t-shirt for instant "fall." Plus, a knit swing coat like this one in teal is a piece you'll reach for over and over — great with everything.

WHERE TO GET IT Knits at all price points are everywhere. I found some of these at Old Navy, and on Vancouver designer Cecile Bénac's website.

Vancouver designer Cecile Bénac's hand knit shrug scarf can be wrapped in numerous ways, $245. cecilebenacknitwear.com

Old Navy's wrap cardigan with a shawl collar comes with a sweet price tag, $39.50. oldnavy.ca

Knit short swing coat, $39.50, is the ideal jacket this fall. oldnavy.ca
